Hardwood is a natural product and will expand and contract during the heating and non-heating seasons, potentially causing changes in the joinery of the products. These changes in the joinery are not considered defects. To minimize these changes as much as possible it is vital that reasonable humidity conditions of 35%-60% are maintained consistently. It is also important to allow time for proper acclimation of the product to the climate conditions. No warranty coverage is provided for product that experiences glue bond failure, cupping, buckling, gapping or cracking due to inadequate, excessive or widely fluctuating humidity levels.
